W345 1997 OCLC Number: ocm39915676 Subject: Administrative agencies -- United States -- Management. Excerpt: . . . 12 the data are not manipulated for purposes of individual gain. The Customs Service continues to have problems that diminish its ability to reasonably ensure that sen-sitive data maintained in automated systems are adequately protected from unau-thorized access and modification. In September 1996, we reported that during the previous 2 years, serious informa-tion security control weaknesses had been reported for 10 of the 15 largest federal agencies. We have made dozens of recommendations for improvement to individual agencies, and they have started acting on many of them. In addition, we have recommended ways for the Office of Management and Budg-et ( OMB ) to enhance its ability to oversee and improve federal information security programs. We suggested steps that OMB can take to ( 1 ) effectively use opportunities to aid in overseeing and improving agency information security programs - such as annual financial audits and the newly created Chief Information Officers Council, and ( 2 ) increase the expertise of its staff in information security management issues. The Year 2000 Problem The Year 2000 Problem poses the high risk that computer systems throughout government will fail to run or malfunction because computer equipment and soft-ware were not designed to accommodate the change of date at the new millennium. For example, IRS tax systems could be unable to process returns, which in turn could jeopardize the collection of revenue and the entire tax processing system. Or SSAs disability insurance process could experience major disruptions if the inter-face with various state systems failed, thereby causing delays and interruptions in disability payments to citizens. We recently issued...
