A year-and-a-half ago much interest was aroused in London by the meeting of the International Congress on Technical Education under the auspices of the Society of Arts, when many valuable papers were contributed both by Englishmen and foreigners upon the subject of commercial education. Last spring an important international gathering was held at Antwerp, specially to discuss general questions connected with commercial education, and last summer a very representative conference was held in the Guildhall, on the invitation of the London Chamber of Commerce, in order to consider what steps should be taken to develop commercial education in the metropolis. Both the papers and the discussion at the last-named conference evinced a wide-spread conviction that something practical should now be done to better equip our youth for commercial life, and at the close of the conference a special committee was formed...
